GENERAL REASON FOR USING A SOFTARE SYSTEM

- Finding some fact or object
  The web page was designed with the purpose of facilitating the purchase of pharmaceutical products, since it presents a section where there is a great variety of products which have their perspective, description and price.

- Learning something
  Since the page is designed for the sale of products, it does not have this condition.

- Performing a transaction
  A section of the website is designed for the sale of pharmaceutical products. In this section the user makes the choice of the products that he wishes to compare and then he must press the send button to bill his purchase.

- Controlling or monitoring something
  Due to the fact that there is a comments section, it is possible to monitor if the user who has accessed our website is comfortable with it or if they have any recommendations to improve it.

- Creating something
  The user has the option to create his account and in the future the option will be implemented that with the creation of his account the user's information is saved in a database and with this it is easier to buy products since he will not have the need to enter for each purchase again your information

- Conversing (or interacting) with other people
  This condition is not available since there is no communication between our users

- Being entertained
  The design of our page does not have an entertainment section as such; however, it is designed with an interface that is attractive, entertaining and easy to use.

- Making a decision
  Within the website there is no section where the user must make a decision, except for the product they want to buy.
